

Hello, Proposal.

Subject: Hello, Proposal.

From: "Robert Pope." <rob.pope@freenet.de>

Date: Sat, 23 Feb 2008 04:58:55 +0100

To: rob.pope@freenet.de

As Manager in a big bank in the Republic of South Africa, I discovered a dormant account in my office. It will be in my interest to transfer this fund worth USD25 million (Twenty Five Million Dollars) to an account offshore, and due to this fact, confidentiality is a must. I will need your assistance for this project to be possible.

My proposal is this, help me to transfer these funds and you will get 40 percent of the total funds when we are through.

These funds have been sitting here for so long and our policy at the bank is to claim all funds that have been in accounts that are redundant for a certain number of years. I want to claim this funds with your help.

These funds belong to a late client, what I propose is that you stand in as his next of kin since he has none and then i will get you all necessary documentation to make this possible.

We will do this by getting you all necessary documentation to show your relationship to my client and by doing so, confirm you as sole beneficiary to the estate of my client.

As an officer of the bank, I cannot be directly connected to this money thus I am impelled to request for your assistance to receive this money into your bank account on my behalf. At the same time I must tell you that the project is legitimate and we will follow the legal procedures at all times.

Please get back to me ASAP, if in the event you are interested.

Thanks for your time,

Robert Pope.