

Research Assistantships

I am an Associate Professor in The Department of Computer Science at The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA). I am pleased to announce the availability of four research assistantships through a grant from DoD in the research areas of wireless networks and security.

All students participating in this research MUST be a U. S. citizen or a permanent resident. Students who are women, underrepresented minorities, or persons with disabilities are strongly encouraged to apply.

If you are currently a PhD or MS student in CS-UTSA and qualified, the support (up to 25K for stipend and tuition) will start in Fall 2008.

If you are currently not a graduate student in CS-UTSA, please still contact me and apply our graduate program as an MS or PhD student for Spring 2009 or Fall 2009. If you are qualified, you will be accepted to our graduate program and supported through this grant.

If you are interested in, please e-mail me your resume and transcript and contact me for more information.

Also please feel free to forward this announcement to your (U. S. citizen or permanent resident) friends/students.

Thanks,
